

Implementing free Wi-Fi in underprivileged communities: A case study of Project Isizwe

IEEE.org | IEEE Xplore | IEEE-SA | IEEE Spectrum | More Sites

SUBSCRIBE Cart Create Account Personal Sign In

IEEE Xplore® Browse My Settings Help Institutional Sign In

All [Search] ADVANCED SEARCH

Conferences > 2017 7th International Confer...

Implementing free Wi-Fi in underprivileged communities: A case study of Project Isizwe

Publisher: IEEE Cite This PDF

Adheesh Budree ; Sheril Chacko ; Louis. Ch. Fourie All Authors

1 Paper Citation 133 Full Text Views

Abstract: A key tool in the fight against poverty and bridging the gap between privileged and underprivileged is access to information. Free Internet connectivity is central to providing this access. This research paper uses on the implementation of free Wi-Fi within selected underprivileged areas of South Africa through on the belief that every citizen of South Africa regardless of their socio-

Need Full-Text access to IEEE Xplore for your organization? CONTACT IEEE TO SUBSCRIBE >

More Like This

Socio-economic effects of FTTH/FTTx in Sweden
2012 14th International Conference on Transparent Optical Networks
Published: 2012

Feedback

Loading [MathJax]/extensions/MathZoom.js
Waiting for cache...

Type here to search 20°C Sunny 14:21 2021/08/02